Standing with Families

2022 Year in Review

Charter Schools Matter

#BackOff
Mission

The National Alliance for Public Charter Schools is the leading national nonprofit organization committed to advancing the charter school movement. Our mission is to lead public education to unprecedented levels of academic achievement by fostering a strong charter school movement.

Vision

Our vision is that every family can choose a well-funded, high-performing public school that delivers an excellent education for their children.

Our Values

Collaboration—We work in partnership with charter school leaders, other stakeholders, and each other to achieve our collective goals.
Diversity—We model what we ask of the movement. Our team includes talented people from a variety of backgrounds, reflecting the diversity of charter schooling and our coalitions and partners.
Quality—We expect the best work from each other and ourselves and won’t settle for anything less.
Results—We make decisions based on evidence and judge our own work by whether it ultimately advances our mission.
Sector Leadership—We seek to lead and serve the charter school movement by deeply understanding opportunities and challenges and anticipating and responding to the movement’s needs.
Sense of Urgency—We are urgent in pursuit of increasing the number of high-quality charter schools, recognizing that for any given family, there is no time to wait.
Contents

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Page</th>
<th>Section</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>4</td>
<td>Message from the CEO</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6</td>
<td>What We Do</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8</td>
<td>Protecting the Charter Schools Program</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>10</td>
<td>Stopping a Threat to the Charter Schools Program</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>13</td>
<td>Standing with Parents</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>14</td>
<td>In the News</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>20</td>
<td>Defining the Legal Landscape</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>21</td>
<td>Winning in State Capitals</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>24</td>
<td>Understanding the Power of Parents</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>27</td>
<td>2022 Publications</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>29</td>
<td>Developing Young Leaders</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>30</td>
<td>Championing Charter Schools</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>32</td>
<td>Honoring Charter School Changemakers</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>35</td>
<td>Convening the Nation’s Charter School Sector</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>38</td>
<td>Dream Big for Kids</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>40</td>
<td>Board of Directors</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>41</td>
<td>Financials</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>42</td>
<td>National Alliance Team</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Parents roared in 2022 and the National Alliance was proud to help their voices be heard while lifting the charter school movement to new heights. In recent years, we’ve become accustomed to anti-charter members of Congress threatening funding for the federal Charter Schools Program (CSP). But an even bigger threat emerged in 2022 when the U.S. Department of Education, bowing to special interest groups, proposed new rules for CSP grants that would have given school districts undue influence on whether charter schools could launch and grow. Charter school leaders of color, those from rural communities, and those who are launching single-site schools would have been most severely affected. Many of these individuals already have limited access to the resources needed to navigate the CSP grant process. Making matters worse, the rules were promulgated with no input from the charter school community and very little time to offer a response.

We sprang into action, coordinating a media campaign, driving comment letters to the U.S. Department of Education, organizing allies, and making sure everyone understood the true impact of the proposed rules. We supported advocates who loudly voiced their opposition, culminating in a parent-led rally at the White House that drew the attention of the administration, members of Congress, and the media.

Thanks to these powerful parents and allies, the Department backed away from the worst of its proposed rules.

Even then, the threat wasn’t fully vanquished. Right on cue, the U.S. House of Representatives proposed a $40 million cut to CSP funding—even though the Biden administration had already released a budget recommendation for level funding. As in past years, we rallied supporters across the nation and leveraged our relationships with charter champions of both parties in the U.S. Senate to restore funding.

These victories demonstrated the power of the charter school movement when we’re united, organized, and engaged at every level, from parents to school leaders to national advocacy organizations.

Our work bore fruit at the state level, too. In both Kentucky and New Mexico, we benefited from strong networks of state and local advocates and our determination to keep pushing forward even when small setbacks made progress difficult.

In New Mexico, where we were fighting a proposed moratorium on charter schools just a few years ago, the state legislature in early 2022 approved new facilities funding that will help charter schools finance school buildings and keep more per-pupil spending in the classroom. Even better: The funding was approved unanimously, with every Democrat and every Republican voting in favor.

In Kentucky, after years of hard work, the state legislature approved a funding mechanism that—five years after the state’s charter law was passed—finally allowed charter schools to open. I’m excited to see our movement strong and united as we move deeper into navigating education with the pandemic hopefully closer to being in the rearview mirror. Charter schools shone over the past few years, and we are well positioned to keep leveraging our autonomy and uniqueness to give more students access to the personalized, high-quality education they deserve.

We also know more clearly than ever before that parents want a choice when it comes to their children’s education—and they’re ready to take action to make sure those choices are available. Our report, Never Going Back, drew on new survey data from The Harris Poll showing that more than a quarter of families changed their child’s type of school during the pandemic, many of them choosing charters, and the vast majority of parents want choices for all even if they don’t exercise choice themselves.

In the November elections, parents proved once again to be a substantial force in races across the country, at times voting outside their registered political party to support candidates who supported charters and choice. Looking at the new political makeup of Congress, statehouses, mayors’ offices, and school boards across the nation, we see clear opportunities to secure stronger support and funding for charter schools in the year ahead.

We were also thrilled to announce the first class of Rising Leaders, a cohort of 10 charter high school students who have earned the opportunity to develop leadership and advocacy skills with training from policy professionals. One of our Rising Leaders spoke at the 2022 National Charter Schools Conference, which was a huge success as we got together in person for the first time in three years. Another joined a panel discussion hosted by our national advocacy partner, 50 CAN, and yet another was a speaker at an event commemorating the 30th anniversary of the charter school movement in Miami last fall.

From start to finish, 2022 was a year of progress. Our movement flexed its muscles, raised its voice, defeated threats, and seized opportunities to give more students access to a high-quality public charter school. We’re proud of what we achieved with the help of so many allies, and we are energetically building for an even more impactful future.

Nina Rees
President and CEO
National Alliance for Public Charter Schools
What We Do

Federal Policy and Advocacy
The National Alliance is the leading advocate for charter schools at the federal level. We are the movement’s voice in Congress and with the Administration, activating supporters and working aggressively to ensure that the interests of charter schools are well represented when legislation is being crafted and regulations are being written.

State Policy and Support
States play a crucial role in charter school growth by establishing the legal and regulatory environment in which charter schools operate and fighting for the freedom and funding charter schools need to be successful. Our legislative advocacy work with state-based partners cultivates state policy environments in which charter schools can flourish. We also provide strategic support to new and emerging state sectors to ensure they attract quality leaders, and we assist founding groups to implement best practices.

Legal Advocacy
Charter schools regularly encounter legal threats to their growth and sustainability. While most of these cases are local in nature, they can have a ripple effect and copycat cases pop up across the country. To counter these threats and prepare for future challenges, the National Alliance provides technical assistance, expert analysis on emerging legal issues, and funding for significant legal cases. We also support cases that will extend and secure charter school rights and expand opportunities to more students.

Research and Evaluation
The National Alliance publishes major reports that highlight and advance progress in our three focus areas: quality, equity, and innovation. Our Data Dashboard—available on the National Alliance website—provides policymakers, parents, and journalists with comprehensive data and metrics on charter schools, charter student demographics, charter school finance, and charter school management.
National External Relations and Communications

Through publications, digital communications, and earned and paid media campaigns, the National Alliance’s communications team promotes accuracy in reporting about charter schools and broadens public understanding of what charter schools are and how they benefit children, families, and communities. We also elevate the voices of the educators, families, and students who are our movement’s best spokespeople. In addition, the annual National Charter Schools Conference serves as the premier forum for the charter school community to convene, learn from each other’s experiences, and build a stronger movement.

Charter school students

3,695,769

Charter schools and campuses

7,821

Charter school teachers

206,000
Protecting the Charter Schools Program

The CSP is the only federal funding source for the start-up, replication, and expansion of quality public charter schools. Since 2019, the CSP has been flat-funded at $440 million, and every year the National Alliance must continue to fight to ensure this funding is renewed and protected. In late March 2022, President Biden released his FY2023 budget request, which included level funding for the Charter Schools Program. However, House appropriators proposed for the fourth consecutive year to cut the program by $40 million. The bill also added language restricting the CSP such that recipients would be unable to contract with for-profit management companies that have full or substantial control of the school. The National Alliance initiated a call-to-action to U.S. senators asking for increased funding of the CSP that resulted in thousands of letters to senators. On July 28, the U.S. Senate Appropriations Committee released a bipartisan FY2023 appropriations proposal that would fund the CSP at $440 million and eliminate the harmful for-profit language. Once again, bipartisan allies in the Senate stepped up to recognize the importance of high-quality public school options.

The fight is ongoing. The National Alliance will continue diligently to educate policymakers and other key stakeholders on the importance of expanding the CSP to meet the needs of families nationwide. We are committed to elevating community voices, strengthening congressional relationships, and demanding high-quality public schools for every family.
The Congressional Black Caucus Institute’s recommendations to Congress

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Recommendations</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Provide states with federal incentives to invest in proven community-based and non-profit programs, as childhood and early learning systems can appropriately support America’s recovery from the pandemic and play an active role in shaping a more equitable future. Implement this strategy by prioritizing funding for communities with the greatest health, social, and educational inequities, and also prioritizing organizations with a track record of success in these communities.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Utilize the most recent reauthorization of the Child Care and Development Block Grant (CCDBG) to help support Head Start and other organizations dedicated to enhancing the social, emotional, physical, and cognitive development of young children. Level the playing field for charter schools, which educate and employ significant African American populations. This includes supporting the equitable treatment of charter schools as public schools in federal policy and legislation, tripling Tittel funding over three years, and providing $500 million in funding for the federal Charter Schools Program to support expanding access to charter schools, ensuring African American and Hispanic charter school operators are on equal footing with other charter operators in competing for federal funds.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Preserve and strengthen the assessment and accountability components of federal education law. Civil rights groups fought hard to require academic assessments and accountability on multiple measures under ESSA. Now more than ever, we need objective data to measure the disparate impact of the COVID-19 pandemic, identify gaps in opportunity, and target resources for evidence-based interventions.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ensure charter schools have equitable access to funds and financing options within the Act, and any other new infrastructure legislation. The Invest in America Act includes financing options that would benefit charter schools, including reauthorizing Qualified Zone Academy Bonds (QZABs), permanently extending and increasing the allocation to New Market Tax Credits (NMTCs), and creating a new tax credit bond authority called School Infrastructure Bonds (SIBs).</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Strengthen support for pipeline programming for HBCU graduates that strengthens access to in-demand careers, particularly in the health professions arena.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
In the spring of 2022, the U.S. Department of Education launched a sneak attack on charter schools by proposing new rules to the CSP that contained harmful recommendations with the intention to stifle charter school growth. These proposed rules were substantial, with the potential to negatively impact the charter school community in a significant way. The Department’s rules would have disproportionately harmed single-site charter schools, school leaders from rural communities, and Black, Brown, and Native school leaders. Make no mistake, the National Alliance and its partners saw this move for what it was: a back-door attempt to prevent new charter schools from opening—contrary to the very purpose of the CSP.
With just 30 days to mount a defense, the National Alliance immediately sprang into action. We began by sounding the alarm and calling for comment letters from national partners, state leaders, and charter school leaders which resulted in more than 10,000 comments being filed. The National Alliance worked with bipartisan Congressional leaders, influential stakeholders, and state local policy makers to put pressure on the Department of Education and the administration to roll back the proposed rules. We secured letters from 16 attorneys general, 19 governors, and several state education leaders objecting to these rules.

We launched the #BackOff campaign targeting the Department of Education with two social media days of action, resulting in millions of impressions on Twitter from grassroots advocates.

Meanwhile, our team got to work meeting with editorial boards and doing outreach to media outlets across the country, generating more than 50 news stories and editorials. Major hits included The Washington Post, Wall Street Journal, and Bloomberg.

A multi-media advertising campaign filled the airwaves in 12 markets with edgy television and radio spots during prime time, complemented by a full-page ad in the Sunday New York Times. We told Education Secretary Cardona to #BackOff!

Ultimately, our campaign made enough noise to make a difference. The final rules are less harmful than those originally proposed. While the Department of Education did not completely pull back the regulations, the final language includes many of the specific comments the National Alliance included in our comment letter and is a testament to the collective advocacy of parents, educators, policymakers, and other supporters.
Standing with Parents

On May 11, the National Alliance stood with nearly 50 organizations, including charter support organizations (CSOs), charter management organizations (CMOs), and parent advocacy groups, to fight back against unnecessary and harmful proposed rules for the Charter Schools Program. A parent-led day of advocacy at the White House and the Department of Education in Washington, D.C., took place during National Charter Schools Week. More than 1,000 parents and activists attended the rally with over 25 participants speaking at a press conference during the rally, which was featured on the front page of the New York Times. The rally provided parents with a platform to raise their voices and stand up for their children and their charter schools.

Jasmine Morrison, parent and advocate at a New Jersey charter school

“Our children are depending on us to break the limits of choice.”
In the News

With more than 225 placements in 2022, the National Alliance continues to earn significant top-tier news coverage and uses these interviews and placements as opportunities to reinforce key messages and shape public understanding of charter schools. The strategy of making our own news and setting our own agenda means more time is spent on offense and less time is spent responding to an agenda set by opponents.
The National Alliance’s senior vice president of communications and marketing, Debbie Veney spoke on a panel at the Reagan Institute Summit on Education (RISE).

President and CEO of the National Alliance for Public Charter Schools, Nina Rees, discussed survey results indicating how parents feel about education on MSNBC’s Morning Joe.

The National Alliance’s senior director of government relations, Ron Rice was a guest on the “Education Matters!” segment of the Roland Martin Unfiltered Daily Digital Show.
Newsweek

OPINION

Meet the New Swing Voter: The Education Voter | Opinion

NINA REES, PRESIDENT OF THE CHARTER SCHOOLS
ACTION FUND

ON 9/23/22 AT 8:00 AM EDT

As tens of millions of children begin what we hope is an uninterrupted year of learning, tens of millions of American parents are being inundated with campaign ads. It’s a fall ritual that carries special significance

USA TODAY

New Biden Administration Rules for Charter Spur Bipartisan Debate

Critics of the proposal say the new rules are overly restrictive and would stifle the growth of charter schools. About 10 million students are largely Black or Hispanic.

The New York Times

Protesters outside the White House

An Education Department proposal that would tighten the rules on charter schools has set the stage for a political showdown.

The Washington Post

Local Education

Opinion | Glenn Youngkin's charter school plan moves past ideology

By Nina Rees

January 13, 2022 at 11:30 a.m. EST

Gov.-elect Glenn Youngkin (R) at a speech in Ashburn in June, when he was campaigning. (Michael Blackshire/The Washington Post)

Bloomberg

Opinion | The Editors

Biden's New Charter-School Rules Are a Step Forward

Eighth-grade students perform at Henderson Hammock Charter School in Tampa, April 13, 2021. PHOTO: DOUGLAS R. CLIFFORD/ZUMA PRESS
Top placements with national reach included the following print and broadcast headlines:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Source</th>
<th>Date</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Opinion: Glenn Youngkin’s charter school plan moves past ideology</td>
<td>The Washington Post by Nina Rees</td>
<td>Jan. 13</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Editorial: The Biden administration’s sneak attack on charter schools</td>
<td>The Washington Post by the Editorial Board</td>
<td>Apr. 2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Facing pushback, Biden administration clarifies charter school rules</td>
<td>The Washington Post by Laura Meckler</td>
<td>May 11</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Parents most concerned about school safety, polling shows</td>
<td>MSNBC Morning Joe Hosted by Willie Geist</td>
<td>Aug. 24</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>84% of parents learned more about their kids’ education during COVID pandemic, survey says</td>
<td>USA TODAY by Jeanine Santucci</td>
<td>Aug. 24</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The GOP is strengthening its grip on education. Parents say Democrats are to blame.</td>
<td>USA TODAY by Alia Wong</td>
<td>Oct. 27</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Opinion: School Choice Made Big Gains During the Covid Pandemic</td>
<td>The Wall Street Journal by Jason L. Riley</td>
<td>Nov. 22</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Building on the initial success in 2021, the National Alliance expanded its values-based multimedia advertising campaign designed to target audiences who share a commitment to creating opportunities for underserved communities and believe in the power of a high-quality public education for all students but lack clarity on who charter schools serve and how they work. In Los Angeles, the reach was bolstered with a new video ad and bus tails that were seen across the city—with an emphasis on areas where socially progressive adults live and work—in addition to social media, billboards, print, and television ads. After providing a proof point for the effectiveness of the campaign, the National Alliance also ran or facilitated similar campaigns in Austin, Texas, Philadelphia, and Washington State.

The National Alliance continued the second year of a multimedia ad campaign aimed to persuade and inform the public about charter schools. The campaign was refreshed with new atmospheric video ads designed to raise general awareness of charter schools and reinforce key messages. The campaign was expanded to run on television, radio, and digital platforms, such as Facebook, Hulu, Spotify, and YouTube in the original markets of Georgia and Rhode Island. Tennessee was added to the mix with an emphasis on local television and radio.
As part of a new type of storytelling campaign, the first iterations of #BestForMe elevated the voices of charter school teachers and families. In Delaware, the campaign homed in on teachers and why they choose to teach at a charter school. These powerful stories changed the narrative around teacher pay and benefits in the state. In New Mexico, the campaign featured stories of charter school parents and why they choose to enroll their children at charter schools. These stories reshaped the conversation about parents and choice in public education. Through social media, billboards, and print ads, the real voices of charter schools spoke passionately and made an impact.

During the 2022 election season, the National Alliance gave voice to the millions of parents who saw something different in education during the pandemic and are never going back to the way things were. Through organic and paid media, a story emerged of a new type of voter, education voters—the parents who have experienced or heard of charter schools and want more, not fewer. Digital ads aired nationwide, reaching millions of people. The National Alliance’s messages helped to combat attacks against charter schools during the election cycle and encouraged those seeking office, especially in markets where charter schools thrive, to consider the power of the education voter.
Defining the Legal Landscape

This was a busy year for the Alliance of Public Charter School Attorneys (APCSA), the national network of approximately 500 charter school attorneys that the National Alliance’s legal team manages. The APCS serves as a research and networking hub for attorneys to obtain and exchange information. It also seeks to educate and inform members of emerging legal issues that directly and indirectly affect charter schools, management organizations, and boards. When the Department of Education proposed restrictive regulations on the federal Charter Schools Program (CSP), making it more difficult for charter schools to receive vital funds, the National Alliance leaned on the APCS network. During the comment period, more than 30 lawyers submitted substantive responses to the Department. APCS attorneys were able to make sophisticated legal arguments opposing the proposed CSP rules, requiring equally substantive replies from the Department of Education attorneys. Thanks to their ability to present thoughtful details and issues for the Department to consider, APCS members’ efforts played a critical role in seeing the most harmful proposals eliminated.

This year also marked the first APCS in-person conference since the pandemic hit in 2020. The spring and fall conferences took place in Santa Monica, California, and Washington, D.C., respectively, garnering at least 80 attendees at each conference. As always, the conferences offered engaging speakers and sessions, designed to explore developing legal issues impacting the charter school community. Notable conference speakers included: Richard Katskee, vice president and legal director for Americans United for Separation of Church and State; Nick Melvoin, vice president of the Los Angeles Unified School District Board of Education; Mandy Schaumburg, chief counsel and deputy director of education policy for the Republican staff of the U.S. House of Representatives’ Committee on Education and Labor; and Ramin Taheri, chief of staff of the Office for Civil Rights in the Department.

The National Alliance visited Lee Montessori Public Charter School in Washington D.C.
Winning in State Capitals

During 2022, the National Alliance was aggressive and diligent in fighting for charter schools at the state level and saw numerous opportunities to both make proactive gains and play effective defense against opposition. In total, the National Alliance worked in 10 states and Puerto Rico. Moving forward, the National Alliance will continue seizing opportunities to impact policy and recruit legislative champions. Once policy is passed, it is critical that the new law is implemented well to ensure a quality charter school sector can thrive in a state.

Our work in states would not be possible without the leadership and support of the State Leaders Council (SLC), led by Myrna Castrejon, President and CEO, California Charter Schools Association. The SLC met once a month virtually and came together in person at the National Charter Schools Conference in DC in June and again in Miami in October.
The National Alliance worked with partners to get a bill enacted that allows charter schools to certify teachers. The National Alliance also collaborated with state allies to make all-day kindergarten universal across the state for all public school students. The new law allots state literacy funds in a way that provides districts and charter schools with a better opportunity to offer the full-day option. Moving forward, the National Alliance will continue to lay the groundwork for a thriving charter sector in the state.

In conjunction with partners, the National Alliance successfully passed a major funding fix into this year’s state budget after enacting a law last year to overhaul the state’s previously weak charter school law. Specifically, the change fully funds charter students during their first year and allows the funding to flow from the state to the charter school. The National Alliance also launched a website as an educational tool and resource for parents, future charter school leaders, and other stakeholders. The National Alliance has also been working with a local partner, Reaching Higher Iowa, to raise funds to support the creation of a new organization, Great Public Schools for Iowa, that will lead efforts to implement the new charter school law.
The National Alliance worked with partners to get a bill enacted that creates a permanent funding mechanism for charter school students. Governor Steve Beshear vetoed this bill, but the legislature overrode the governor’s veto, and the bill became law. Now that a permanent funding mechanism is in place, the National Alliance expects to see high-quality charter schools finally open in the Bluegrass State. Since the bill’s passage, the National Alliance has been working to raise funds to support the creation of a new organization that will lead the efforts to implement the new charter school law and support new charter school development.

The National Alliance worked with partners to get a bill enacted that enhances the state’s support of charter school facilities in several ways, including by providing a $700 per-pupil lease assistance allotment, creating a $10 million revolving loan fund, and ensuring unused district facilities are offered to charter schools. The National Alliance also helped defeat a bill that would have limited the growth of administrative expenses at school districts and charter schools, thus limiting the amount of money that charter schools can spend on their facility leases. To support partners in the state, the National Alliance launched a digital campaign that explained charter school facilities inequities through a series of short animations. These spots were targeted in key state legislative districts through Facebook and geofencing around the State Capitol for an entire month. The team also provided messaging support for calls-to-action and a special landing page on Public Charter Schools of New Mexico’s website. While there were a variety of advocacy efforts targeted to this bill, local advocates recognized the social media campaign as a key component of the successful push.
In 2021, the National Alliance began to notice an interesting shift in public school enrollment. In record numbers, parents were choosing to send their children someplace other than the public school they were zoned to attend. Why did parents do this? And where did the students end up? What role did the COVID pandemic play in changing parents’ views on education choice? To answer these questions, we commissioned researchers at The Harris Poll to survey a representative national sample of 5,000 parents in May. The data provided deep insights into how parents feel about education, whether and why they’ve made any changes in how their school-aged children are educated, how their views have changed over the past two years, and the likelihood of their voting decisions being influenced by views on education. The report showed parents overwhelmingly like and want the freedom to choose the best education option for their children. And even if they didn’t choose to exercise that choice, they overwhelmingly believe other parents should have options.
Parents value choice: key findings

93% agree one size doesn’t fit all in education.

More than one in four parents have switched the type of school their children attend at least once.

86% of all parents surveyed want options for their children other than the district school they are zoned for or assigned to attend.

More than four in five parents (83%) agree that education has become a more important political issue to them than it was in the past, and 82% are willing to vote outside their party on the issue of education.

89% Eighty-nine percent of parents whose children made a switch to a charter school report that they or their child experienced a positive change as a result.

Support for charter schools is high. Three in four parents want more public charter school offerings in their area.
2022 Publications

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Author(s)</th>
<th>Date</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Case Study on Oklahoma’s 2021 Redbud School Funding Act</td>
<td>Lisa S. Grover, Ph.D, National Alliance for Public Charter Schools</td>
<td>April 4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Never Going Back: An Analysis of Parent Sentiment on Education</td>
<td>Debbie Veney, National Alliance for Public Charter Schools, and The Harris Poll</td>
<td>August 24</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fostering Charter School Growth Through State Loan and Grant Programs</td>
<td>Lisa S. Grover, Ph.D., National Alliance for Public Charter Schools, and Brooke Quisenberry, Momentum Strategy and Research</td>
<td>September 19</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Changing Course: Public School Enrollment Shifts During the Pandemic</td>
<td>Drew Jacobs and Debbie Veney, National Alliance for Public Charter Schools</td>
<td>November 16</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
National Alliance’s Rising Leader, Isabella Paez delivered a speech at the Dream Big for Kids benefit.
Developing Young Leaders

The National Alliance launched the first cohort of Rising Leaders, a group of charter high school students who want to help address education issues in their communities and advocate for increased access to high-quality and free public education options. More than 100 students applied to this new program, and the 10 selected have demonstrated leadership and a deep commitment to improving their school community. The one-year program will offer students 1:1 training in history, civics, education advocacy, leadership development, and public speaking. At the conclusion of their training, Rising Leaders will have the skills and confidence to drive change in their local community, successfully lead an education advocacy club at their schools, and sharpen their networking, leadership, and public speaking skills.

Lauren Chiemeka
Usonwa Ejiaga
Benjamin Franklin High School, Louisiana

Daniyal Hussain
Cottonwood Classical Preparatory School, New Mexico

Jah’mere Jackson
Riverhead Charter School, New York

Isabella Paez
Mater Academy Charter Middle and High School, Florida

Dylan Conard
Valor College Prep, Tennessee

Alayna Crafton
Palmetto Scholars Academy, South Carolina

Naimisha Chakravadhanula
BASIS Scottsdale, Arizona

Dayanna Vann
Canton Preparatory High School, Michigan

Dylan Park
Washington Latin Public Charter School, D.C.

Stephanie Robinson
Coral Academy of Science Las Vegas, Nevada

29
Championing Charter Schools

The National Alliance for Public Charter Schools honored a bipartisan group of 16 state and federal lawmakers with the 2022 Champion for Charter Schools Award for their commitment as lawmakers to seeing charter schools thrive and expand in their state and across the United States.
Federal honorees

Lifetime Achievement Senator Roy Blunt (R-MO)
Rising Star Representative Ritchie Torres (D-NY-15)

- Senator Bill Cassidy, M.D. (R-LA)
- Senator Brian Schatz (D-HI)
- Representative Sanford D. Bishop, Jr. (D-GA-02)
- Representative John Moolenaar (R-MI-4)

State honorees

- Iowa Governor Kim Reynolds (R)
- Ohio Governor Mike DeWine (R)
- Hawaii Lt. Governor Josh Green (D)
- Kentucky Representative Chad McCoy (R)
- New Mexico Representative Cathryn Brown (R)
- New Mexico Senator Siah Correa Hemphill (D)
- South Dakota Senator Troy Heinert (D)
- Wyoming Senator Ogden Driskill (R)
- Wyoming Senator Affie Ellis (R)
- Wyoming Senator Charles Scott (R)
Honoring Charter School Changemakers

Whether in classrooms or as community activists and volunteers, thousands of unsung heroes are the lifeblood of the charter school movement. During National Charter Schools Week, the National Alliance proudly recognized 10 charter school changemakers for their meaningful contributions to charter schools and their communities.

Sol Avalos
English Language Director, Mater Academy East Campus, Las Vegas, NV

Sol led advocacy work in her state, including helping to stop a 2019 moratorium aimed at delaying the approval of a new charter school.

Tonya Kelly
Teacher, Horizon Science Academy Columbus Elementary School, Columbus, OH

After both of Tonya’s children experienced bullying in school, she founded the Empower Our Youth Foundation, which provides mentorship, health and wellness support, and anti-bullying resources.

Raquel Crader
Teacher, Dolores T. Aaron Academy, New Orleans, LA

Raquel built an interactive reading YouTube channel for parents and students, helping to continue their love of reading when they had less access to books and time in school.

Leah Okimoto
Parent, Lowell Community Charter Public School, Lowell, MA

After her second child, Aaron, passed away in infancy, Leah founded Aaron’s Presents, a program helping middle schoolers lead projects to benefit people, animals, or the environment.
Eric Tucker
School Leader, Brooklyn Laboratory Charter Schools, New York City, NY

Eric was diagnosed with ADHD, dyslexia, dysgraphia, and language acquisition delays. He created the Educate All Learners Alliance website to provide resources on teaching students with learning disabilities.

Margarita Porter
School Leader, New America School-Las Cruces, Las Cruces, NM

Margarita opened a childcare center to help students with children to continue their education.

Blair Williams
Community and Communications Coordinator, Island Montessori Charter School, Wilmington, NC

Blair helped students participate in community service projects at school and throughout the state, making service learning a major part of the school’s curriculum.

Dr. Jeremy Sager
School Leader, Nashville Prep, Nashville, TN

Jeremy made a huge impact in his first year as the principal by building a positive, strong school culture during the pandemic.

Gwen E. Samuel
Community Leader, Connecticut Parents Union, Meriden, CT

Melissa Tracy
Teacher, Odyssey Charter School, Wilmington, DE

Melissa helped her students create a hydroponic learning lab and traditional raised garden beds; they have donated over 5,000 pounds of fresh produce to individuals in need.

Dr. Jeremy Sager
School Leader, Nashville Prep, Nashville, TN

Jeremy made a huge impact in his first year as the principal by building a positive, strong school culture during the pandemic.

Melissa Tracy
Teacher, Odyssey Charter School, Wilmington, DE

Melissa helped her students create a hydroponic learning lab and traditional raised garden beds; they have donated over 5,000 pounds of fresh produce to individuals in need.

Gwen E. Samuel
Community Leader, Connecticut Parents Union, Meriden, CT

Eric Tucker
School Leader, Brooklyn Laboratory Charter Schools, New York City, NY

Eric was diagnosed with ADHD, dyslexia, dysgraphia, and language acquisition delays. He created the Educate All Learners Alliance website to provide resources on teaching students with learning disabilities.

Margarita Porter
School Leader, New America School-Las Cruces, Las Cruces, NM

Margarita opened a childcare center to help students with children to continue their education.

Blair Williams
Community and Communications Coordinator, Island Montessori Charter School, Wilmington, NC

Blair helped students participate in community service projects at school and throughout the state, making service learning a major part of the school’s curriculum.

Gwen E. Samuel
Community Leader, Connecticut Parents Union, Meriden, CT

Dr. Jeremy Sager
School Leader, Nashville Prep, Nashville, TN

Jeremy made a huge impact in his first year as the principal by building a positive, strong school culture during the pandemic.

Melissa Tracy
Teacher, Odyssey Charter School, Wilmington, DE

Melissa helped her students create a hydroponic learning lab and traditional raised garden beds; they have donated over 5,000 pounds of fresh produce to individuals in need.
Keynote speaker, Principal Baruti Kafele talked about the ability of educators to change student lives.
Convening the Nation’s Charter School Sector

With the pandemic almost behind us, we were thrilled to host the National Charter Schools Conference in person in Washington, D.C. The 2022 conference was a sold-out event, reuniting 3,500 charter school educators, school leaders, and national, state, and local advocates. The four-day conference featured more than 70 breakout sessions, 250 exhibitors, and an exceptional slate of speakers. Principal Baruti Kafele, a highly regarded urban educator with more than 20 years of experience and a transformational school leader, was the keynote speaker, energizing us by speaking about the ability of educators to change students’ lives. His talk left the audience ready to take home and apply what they learned at the conference. Attendees also had a chance to hear from different people on why they support public charter schools, including LaJoy Johnson-Law, a parent with a student enrolled at Rocketship; Gavin Schriffres, 2021 “30 Under 30 Changemaker” award recipient and the former leader of Kairos Academies; Myrna Castrejón, California Charter Schools Association President and CEO, and National Alliance board member; and Dylan Park, a student at Washington Latin Public Charter School and one of the 2022 Rising Leaders.
Top Sponsors

Academica
Amazon Business
Building Hope
Charter School Capital
Chan Zuckerberg Initiative
Google
Harmony Public Schools
Lexia
Piper Sandler
School Specialty
Walton Family Foundation
Dream Big for Kids

Every child deserves access to a great education that prepares them to live out their dreams. On October 27, the National Alliance celebrated the public charter school movement at the inaugural Dream Big for Kids Benefit in Miami Beach, Florida. Friends and supporters gathered to hear from charter school champions and advance the mission to lead public education to unprecedented levels of academic achievement.

The Dream Big for Kids Benefit brought together educators, advocates, and champions of the movement, including Florida Commissioner of Education, Manny Diaz, Jr., a lifelong educator, former state senator, and longtime charter school champion. Inspiration and motivation came from remarks by Nina Rees, National Alliance president and CEO; Daniela Anello, head of school at DC Bilingual Public Charter School; Isabella Paez, sophomore at Mater Academy Charter School and a National Alliance Rising Leader; and Jessica Rodriguez, parent and advocate from South Florida. With 28 generous sponsors and 200 attendees, the Dream Big for Kids Benefit celebrated 30+ years of charter schools.
Attendees gather to celebrate and strengthen the impact of charter schools.
Board of Directors

Rick Cruz
Chair of the Board
President and CEO, Arabella Advisors

Rich Berlin
Vice Chair of the Board
Executive Director, DREAM Charter School

Joanne Weiss
Treasurer of the Board
President, Weiss Associates

Patrick Dobard
Secretary of the Board
Partner, City Fund

Myrna Castrejón
Chair, State Leaders Council;
President and CEO, California Charter Schools Association

Derrell Bradford
President, 50Can

Carlos Curbelo
Former U.S. Representative from Florida

Shirley Franklin
Former Mayor of Atlanta

Reed Hastings
Founder and Executive Chairman, Netflix

Bill Kurtz
CEO, DSST Public Schools

Marc Lampkin
Managing Partner, Brownstein Hyatt Farber Schreck

Tim Nicolette
Executive Director, Massachusetts Charter Public School Association

Ana Ponce
Executive Director, Great Public Schools Now
Major Supporters

- Anonymous Donor
- The Anschutz Foundation
- Arthur Rock and Toni Rembe Rock
- The Beth and Ravenel Curry Foundation
- Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation
- Bloomberg Philanthropies
- Charter School Growth Fund
- The City Fund
- Daniels Fund
- Hastings/Quillin Fund
- J.A. and Kathryn Albertson Family Foundation

- Lozick Family Foundation
- The Margaret M. Bloomfield Family Foundation
- Nanar and Tony Yoseloff
- National Heritage Academies
- The Norman R. Rales & Ruth Rales Foundation
- S. Joseph Bruno
- Sidney A. Swensrud Foundation
- U.S. Department of Agriculture
- U.S. Department of Education
- Walton Family Foundation
National Alliance Team

Nina Rees
President & CEO

Eric Paisner
Chief Operating Officer

Will Burns
Executive Vice President National Advocacy

Debbie Veney
Senior Vice President Communications and Marketing

Christy Wolfe
Senior Vice President Policy, Research, and Planning

Todd Ziebarth
Senior Vice President State Advocacy and Support

Brittnee Baker
Manager, Communications and Marketing

Kyle Breckenridge
Director, Strategic Initiatives

Charlie Bufalino
Senior Director, State Advocacy and Support

Katie Burke
Senior Director, Policy

Angela Christophe
Producer, National Charter Schools Conference

Jake Custer
Vice President, HR and Operations

Jennifer Diaz
Vice President, Communications

Natalie Ethridge
Vice President, Strategic Initiatives

Marlon Greatrex
Senior Manager, Government Relations

Lisa Grover, Ph.D.
Senior Director, State Advocacy

Patricia Guidetti
Senior Director, Programs

Celia Hagerman
Senior Director, Major Gifts